Fighting Monsters: SWAT Life By Sean Joselyn, A. J. Reilly

Fighting Monsters is a collection of Sean Joselyn's memorable experiences during his, still very active, law enforcement career. During these experiences while assigned to patrol and SWAT, he has witnessed tragedy, seen lives taken, and taken someone's life himself. His stories illustrate the monsters he and his teams have fought. In his book, he will walk you through these experiences by putting yourself in his boots. You will learn about his successes and failures as he lived and learned from them. He will share the emotional toll that this career has taken on him and his family. The monsters, though, aren't always who you think they are. They come in different forms, different areas of his life, and even from within. You see, Sergeant Sean Joselyn has learned that it takes a monster to fight monsters. He has trained himself both physically and mentally to do this; to fight and win at all costs. He now trains his team to have the same mindset. He has created a calloused group of warriors who will walk into hell together, side by side, but at what cost?

Editorial Review

From the Back Cover

Sean Joselyn humanizes those in law enforcement who have been called upon to protect and serve our communities. He unveils the deep and rarely discussed experience of Fighting Monsters, both within our communities and within ourselves. His remarkable mission toward personal and traumatic growth will open discussion and understanding, to those both within and outside of the profession.

Jaime Brower, Psy.D., ABPP, Board Certified in Police & Public Safety Psychology

As an active law enforcement officer and current SWAT Team Leader, if you care anything about your mental well-being and protecting yourself from the dangers of your on-the-job high risk experiences, you have to read Sean Joselyn's new book. Don't just put it on the shelf. Read it. Read it again and again until you need a new one. Sean writes in an engaging style and clearly lays out everything you need to know about the mechanics of promoting emotional and psychological safety in a high risk environment. Although many forgo mucking about in the issues of emotional well-being ---with good reason--- this must be read by those who do. Those professionals who do care about such issues and who fancy themselves as "experts" will learn critical skills on how to approach and appropriately communicate such fears and anxiety. If five stars is tops, I give this book a ten!"

Philip J. Baca, Commerce City Police Department, Chief of Police (Retired)

From the moment I picked up the book Fighting Monsters I couldn't put it down. I felt myself back in a uniform standing next to Sergeant Joselyn and couldn't stop the flow of emotions. I believe everyone will be captivated by Sergeant Joselyn's experiences and the real life look at what a SWAT officer endures and the toll it takes on them and everyone around them. I love reading about real heroes that dedicate themselves to saving lives of people they have never met with no regard for their own life. When you read this book you will have a new perspective for those in law enforcement and all that they do! Thank you Sergeant Joselyn for writing this amazing true to life book.

Sergeant Grant Whitus, SWAT Team Leader (Retired)

About the Author

Sean Joselyn has been in law enforcement since 2000 and is currently assigned to the patrol division of a large Sheriff's Department in Colorado. He is a Sergeant on patrol and the current team leader of a Regional Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) Team. Sean has been involved in four critical incidents during his career and has received awards for his professionalism under extreme stress. Sean's experience at the Sheriff's Department began in the detentions division where he spent 2 years in operations before transferring to patrol. After 9 years on patrol Sean transferred to the training department as the academy coordinator. After 2 1/2 years in the training unit and coordinating 5 academies, Sean was promoted to the rank of Sergeant. Sean has been a member of the regional SWAT team since 2004 and held many positions ranging from observer/marksman to entry team. In 2012 he was appointed to the team leader position and currently supervises 19 operators, 3 SWAT K9s, and 1 SWAT medic. Sean coordinates and instructs the majority of the SWAT team's training including but not limited to: Hostage Rescue, Barricade Resolution, Vehicle Assaults, Dynamic Entries, and Methodical Search Techniques. Sean also plans and oversees the team's tactical operations. He is heavily involved in the department's in-service training for its sworn personnel as well as the regional law enforcement academy. There he instructs firearms, driving, building search, officer survival, rapid and immediate deployment (RAID) to the active shooter, response to critical incidents, and a basic SWAT course. Sean has also instructed tactical gas deployment in basic SWAT schools as well as dynamic movement post explosive breach in advanced SWAT schools.
